GLEANINGS FROM HISTORY.

Presented by JAMES C. SWAN.

And now the generals of Demetrius, willing to recover the defeat they had, gathered a greater army together than they had before, and came near Jonathan; but as soon as he informed of their coming, he went timely to meet them, to the country of Amathus, for he resolved to give them an opportunity of coming into Judea; he stretched his camp fifty furlongs, and sent from the rear a detachment to take a view of their camp, and in what manner they were encamped, and his spies had given him full information, and had seized upon some of them by night, who told him the enemy did soon attack him; he, thus apprised beforehand, provided for this end, and placed his army in ambush, and kept all his forces armed all night; and he gave them a charge to be of good courage, and to have their arms prepared to fight in the night; so, if they should be obliged so to do, that their enemies should seem to come from them. Put when Demetrius's commanders were informed that they were known, and that their counsels were discovered, and it turned them to find, that the enemy had discovered these their intentions; so did they expect to overcome them in any other way, now they had failed in the way they had laid for them; for could they hazard an upon battle, they would not think they should be a match for Jonathan's army; so they resolved to give up their having fought many battles, when the enemy saw them fight, they might suppose they were there still, they desired. But when Jonathan came to them in battle in the morning in their camp, and found it deserted, and understood they were fled, he pursued them, yet he could not overtake them, for they had already passed over the Jordan, and were at Damascus. So when Jonathan was returned to Jerusalem, he went into Arabia, and fought against the Nabateans, and drove away a great deal of their prey, and took many captives, and came to Damascus, and there sold off that he had taken. About the same time it was that Simon

When Simoun and Jonathan had finished these affairs, they returned to Jerusalem, where Jonathan gathered all the people together, and took counsel to restore the walls of Jerusalem, and to rebuild the temple, which had been thrown down, and to make the places adjoining the temple.

...stronger by very high towers; and besides that, to build another wall is the midst of the city, in order to exclude the market-place from the garrison which was in the citadel, and by that means to hinder them from any plenty of provisions; and moreover, to make the fortresses that were in the country much stronger, and more defensible than they were before. And when these things were approved of by the multitude, as rightly proposed, Jonathan himself took care of the building: and he engaged all the Jews to follow him, and to make the fortresses in the country more secure than formerly. But Demetrius passed over Ephrates, and came into Mesopotamia, as desirous to retain that country still, as well as Babylon; and when he should have obtained the dominion of the upper provinces, to lay a foundation for recovering his entire kingdom; for those him, and promised, that if he would come to them, they would deliver themselves up to them, and assist them in fighting against Araces, the king of the Parthians. So he was elevated with these hopes, and came hastily to them, and being received by them, he once overthrew the Parthians, and got ten an army of his own, he would make war against Trypho, and eject him out of Syria; and the people of that country received him with great alacrity. So he raised his forces, with which he fought against Trypho, and lost his army, and was himself taken alive.

PORTSMOUTH.
The wife of Rev. John Mason and two daughters, Miss Ruth and Miss Mary Mason; Mrs. Louise Fisher, of New York, and Miss Mabel Fisher, of Philadelphia, are spending a few weeks at "Wapping."

The three children of Rev. George Herbert Patterson, Arthur, Harry and Edith, are spending a few days here, but will soon return to their home in Dedham.

Rev. William Luscomb, who has recently returned from missionary work in the West Indies, was present at the campmeeting on Sunday, and announced his intention of soon going to Africa or India.

Mrs. D. H. Matthewson and family, of Providence, have spent a fortnight as guests of Mrs. Peleg Thurston, on Union street.

Mrs. Abiel Fish reached her eightieth birthday on Saturday, and her two daughters, living in Bristol, Mrs. Georgia Douglas and Mrs. Elizabeth Darling, visited her.

One hundred and fifty shares in the stock of the campmeeting association have been taken, and about $1,000, including the shares, have been raised. Four persons were baptised Sunday morning.

The lawn party given by St. Mary's Guild on Wednesday afternoon and evening was largely attended and the supper was pronounced by all to be excellent.

The handsome desk on the platform of the tabernacle at the camp grounds was given to Mrs. Holdah Ross. It was made almost entirely by a Providence woman, the only help she had being the first planing of the boards. The work is beautifully done, and the upholstery with plush is worthy of an expert.

BULLET IN HIS HEAD

Contractor Takes His Own Life
Without Apparent Motive.

Nothing in His Affairs to Point to Suicide
—A Case Which Puzzles the Good People of a Boston Suburb.

Boston, Aug. 23.—When Conrad Joul, a Danvers contractor, rose from his bed in Lexington on Tuesday morning he forgot his 38-caliber revolver, and the person who made his bed up found the weapon under his pillow. Joul did not forget it yesterday, and his young son Neil found the father's grating body with the revolver under his left leg.

A bullet had entered the head above the right ear, and played its way out through the eye, which was found intact 12 feet away. It makes the third man who has died by his own hand in Lexington within the past six months.

Appearances indicate between "suicide and accidental shooting." Medical Examiner Marshall approves the latter. Joul was a man 61 years of age, tall and strong, jolly and hearty.

It was some minutes before 7 o'clock yesterday, and he walked around the basin to some rising ground opposite to the spot at which the men were waiting to go to work, and about an eighth of a mile away. From where he stood he could see all of the works and all of the men.

About 6:55 o'clock a revolver shot rang out. Among those of the men who heard it was Michael Galvin, one of the workmen. He thought it was boys firing at a mark in the woods, as they often do.

Discovered by His Son.

At 7, as the men had not received the order to go to work, Neil, the 15-year-old son, who was driving started around the basin to look for his father. He found him by the stone wall, dying. He called out, and Thomas Stanton, the general foreman; W. J. Aborn and Lewis Hawes, both engineers, and Michael Galvin, came running up, followed by all the workmen.

The dying man was taken to a house near by. He was unconscious, and remained so until he died, about 9 o'clock. Dr. Valentine and Tilton were called, but could do nothing. There was a hole in the man's head into which a finger could be inserted. Medical Examiner Marshall of Winchester held an examination, the result of which was a finding of "accidental shooting."

This verdict was based, so it is said, on the statement of Mr. Joul's son Neil, that his father was in the habit of going up to the hill to blow his whistle for the men to begin work, and also that it was his custom to examine his revolver at the same time.

But the bullet apparently entered the head on the right side. And it took a slanting direction in order to come out through the right eye. This would imply that the man was not only holding the weapon to the rear of his turning of vision, but that he was actually turning his eyes away from it.

But the motive? Here's the mystery. There is nothing to point to suicide in the dead man's affairs. He was happily married and in good circumstances.

He was in Dr. Valentine's office the night before the shooting, and appeared to be in his usual good spirits. The physician says that he had no physical ailment which might have caused him to act rashly.

Weavers Out at Suncook.

SUNCOOK, N. H., Aug. 23.—Four hundred weavers in the China mill yesterday afternoon walked out, surprising the overseers. The company here is run by Fall River (Mass.) prices. A 10 per cent cut-down was ordered Tuesday, which reduces weavers to about 17 cents a cut. The help are French, good looking people, and the company wants them to work under the same schedules as are in force in Fall River. It is rumored that all three of the large mills, the China, Pepproke and Webster, will have to shut down, as their help may refuse to work.

Not Guilty Their Plea.

AMESBURY, Mass., Aug. 23.—The alleged murders of Edwin Crosby were brought here last night, Little from Manchester, N. H., and Hunt from Haverhill. Both pleaded not guilty. The cases were continued until Aug. 25. They were taken to Newburyport jail this morning. Fred Crosby, brother of the murdered man, was thrown from a team at Merline yesterday afternoon and seriously injured. Little and Hunt still maintain their innocence.

Henniker Murderer Held.

CORCORAN, N. H., Aug. 23.—The case of Arthur G. McLean of Henniker, for the murder of Nellie Belle Daughless of that town, on Aug. 15, came up before the police court yesterday. The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and his counsel waived examination at this time. McLean was committed to jail without bail to await the action of the grand jury of the supreme court in October.

Pravda Nearing the Grave.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 23.—Augustus Pravda, who is now in Cumberland county jail awaiting sentence for the murder of his mother-in-law in Yarmouth last November, is slowly dying. Doctors are puzzled over his symptoms and have arrived at opinions that he has taken some slow poison. Pravda refuses to talk to any one about his sickness.

A $10,000 Fire at Haverhill.

HAVERRILL, Mass., Aug. 23.—The four-story Chase block on Merrimack street was the scene of a $10,000 blaze last evening. The fire started on the second floor in a suite of rooms occupied by J. H. Norton & Co., upholsterers, and its origin is shrouded in mystery. Several occupants had narrow escapes fleeing from the building.

A Summer Resort Fire.

LEWISTON, Me., Aug. 23.—The big stable connected with the Poland Spring House was burned to the ground last night, with about 30 horses, several carriages, all the harnesses, about 70 tons of hay and 50 tons of straw. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss is estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000.

Cutdown to Be Restored.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 23.—The operatives in the Lowell Manufacturing company (except millers) were notified yesterday that if the new tariff bill becomes law Monday, the 10 per cent cutdown of last February will be immediately restored.

Ephraim Is in Nantucket.

WARREN, Mass., Aug. 23.—The family of John A. Upham of this town, who has been missing since July 30, have heard from him in Nantucket, but have received no explanation of his sudden departure.

The Lime Rock's Difficulties.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 23.—Directors of the Lime Rock National Bank yesterday voted to reduce the capitalization from $500,000 to $100,000, which means the retirement of one-fifth of the stock.

To Strengthen Fall-Enders.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 23.—C. H. Wilson will manage the Brockton team. The team will be strengthened and the places of those who have deserted will be filled at once.

THE HOME IN WARM WEATHER.

Ways Worth Following to Add to the Family Comfort in Summer.

In planning for the comfort of the household during the heated term the intelligent homemaker realizes that half the battle is gained when a cool appearance is secured. To this end, she divests her rooms of every bit of drapery, window, mantle and door hangings, and puts cool looking matting, which come now in inexpensive and artistic weaves, on the floor.

Covers for the upholstered furniture are very effective and summery in appearance, now that the linen fabrics for them come in graceful rosebud and fern designs and delicate tints. If our housekeeper is very up to date, she can make these covers herself, their shape fitting not at all difficult to secure. If it is desired to cover the chandeliers and pictures, a delicate buff tulle is most restful to the eye. This sheer material lends itself gracefully to chandelier draping and is additionally ornamental tied down with narrow ribbons of the same hue. It can be used as well laid in smooth folds over mirror and picture frames, held in place at the back by small gimp tacks.

Green shades at the windows are an absolute necessity through the warm days, and, with the indispensable awning, temper the glare in the most graceful way. These of hunter's green are the best in color and can be bought as low as 49 cents.

Have the lines of your dining room neutral in tone. Do this by banishing gay cloths and brilliant effects of any sort except the box of window plays, whose bloom is a pleasure and whose cultivation is a saving occupation. If your china is strong in color, put it away and use the creamy white. For your relishes have plenty of ice. A pretty table center at a certain suburban home is, for the 6 o'clock dinner, on hot days, a crystal bowl filled with bits of lettuce, among which nest the rose radish and the succulent olive.

The care of the sleeping rooms in summer is important. Do not make them the day sitting rooms, as is often done unnecessarily. If you have two, furnish one for morning use and the other to sleep in. Let all decorations be as simple as possible. Complexity of ornament is fatiguing, and in summer everything should be restful.

Keep your sewing corner out of your bedroom.

Screen your windows from flies and insects. The best screens are those that cover the entire frame space, hooking into a staple at each side. These are expensive to begin with, but if you own your house or have a long lease more than pay in comfort for the cost. If you cannot put them all over the house, have them in the kitchen and in the bedrooms. In the former they will permit the capricious and careless window shifting of the cook without harm, and in the bedrooms will make possible opening windows both top and bottom, thus securing the best ventilation.

All beds should have very thin sheets, summer blankets and honeycomb spreads. Pillow and bolster cases should be lightly trimmed, and on very hot days in the twilight the best sheet should be uncovered to insure later comfort. At the head and keep always a huge palm leaf fan, and a tray on the small table by the bedside which will hold ice water, a glass, lemonade and a bowl of sugar will be found acceptable many times.

In the second room a cool linen covered lounge or divan, with pillows to match, out of the draft, yet within reach of air, will be an inviting siesta nest, with a Turkish stool near on which books and papers are piled. In the closet hang a loose sack or gown of fine muslin, that bit of thin stuff which has ruffled and lace, but not irregular fit. All these may be trifles, but it will be found that much of the discomfort of the summer solstice is lessened by their observance.—New York Times.

Mrs. Putnam, Fortistide, Mass., says:

"That Bearing-Down Feeling"
and dizzy, faint, gasping attacks left me as soon as I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am like one raised from the dead. I was sick with womb troubles so long I thought I never could get well."

BABY'S SILK ROSE.

With two ounces of Victoria knitting silk and four No. 13 or 17 steel needles cast on one needle 30 stitches for top of head.

1st to 23rd row—Plain knitting.
24th row—Nine plain, narrow, 5 plain, narrow, turn.

25th row—Nine plain, narrow, turn. This row is repeated until you have taken in all the stitches on each side; this forms the head. Pick up 15 stitches down each side of the head and continue to knit all the stitches for 30 rows without increasing or decreasing. Divide these stitches on two needles. For the toe cast on 22 more stitches on a third needle, knit in the round.

1st and 2nd rounds—Plain knitting.
3rd round—One plain, narrow, 14 plain, narrow, 2 plain, narrow, knit plain to within three stitches of the end of round, then 14 plain, narrow, 1 plain.

4th round—Knit without decreasing. Repeat these two rounds alternately, with this exception, that there will be two stitches less each time between the four and back decreases, until 22 stitches only remain. Bind off and draw the stitches together with needle and thread. Pick up the stitches round the top on three needles.

1st and 2nd rounds—Plain.
3rd round—Purl, then bind off. Cast on 20 stitches for the front of foot, work in diamond pattern as follows:

1st row—One plain, narrow, 1 narrow at the back, 3 plain, narrow, make 1, repeat from beginning of row. End the row with make 1, 1 plain.

3d row—Two plain, make 1, narrow, at the back knit 1 plain, narrow, make 1, 3 plain, repeat from *. End row with make 1, 2 plain.

4th row—Two plain, narrow, make 1, 1 plain, make 1, narrow at the back, 8 plain, narrow, repeat from *. End the row with 2 plain.

5th row—One plain, narrow, make 1, 3 plain, make 1, narrow at the back, 1 plain, narrow, repeat from *. End row with make 1, narrow, 1 plain.

6th row—Narrow, make 1, 6 plain, make 1, knit 3 together, from *. End the row with make 1, narrow. Repeat from first row twice more, then knit these two rows plain.

Now cast on 16 stitches on each side of the front, and work the leg.

1st and 2d rows—Plain.
3d row—Make 1 by putting silk over the needle, narrow; repeat to the end of row.

4th row—Purl.
5th row—Two plain, purl 2 through-out.

6th row—Purl the plain, and knit purl the purl stitches of previous row.

7th row—Purl 2 and knit 2 through-out.

8th row—Knit plain the purl, and purl the plain stitches of previous row. Repeat from the fifth row 4 times more.

9th row—One plain, make 1, 1 plain, knit 3 together, 1 plain, make 1. Repeat from the beginning of row.

10th row—Knit plain all the stitches except the single stitches between the made stitches; they are purl. Repeat these 2 last rows twice more, then bind off.

Sew the leg down the back, then sew the fancy knitted part into the plain part of the shoe; it must be sewn into the stitches just below the 4 rows knitted on the pick-up stitches round top. Run a wire through holes at ankle, and tie in a bow on front.—[Maggie Merrill.]

Characteristic Heels.
There is a new word to be added to the language, says the Westminster Budget, a new topic to general conversation, and a new science to the accomplished and the simple professor.

The word is scarpology. The scarpologist is not exactly a chirographer, but deals with the other extremity, and tells your character, not by your hand, but by your foot, or rather by your foot. Give a boot or shoe you have worn for three months or more, and you are opening up to him all your secret springs of action, your motives, your conduct, your life. It is a doctor in disguise who has headed the new philosophy and announces himself as the original scarpologist. He has, of course, to give a few indications to support his claim to his proud position. A man does not become a professor by merely inventing a word.

So here are the indications. If you wear heels and sole even, you are an energetic man, full of action and resource; and if that boot belongs to the owner, the owner is faithful affectionate and generous of mind.

If you wear the sole of the domestic boot on the outside—which most people do—you are an enthusiast, and very likely to become an adventurer. This is not pleasant philosophy, and what makes it worse is that the boot tells the same story for both sexes. But it is when the wear is on the inside that the results are the stranger. If you are a scarpologist, you are a feeble, irresolute, vacillating creature; if you are a woman, you are attractive and modest.

Now this, too, is odd philosophy. For knock-kneed people generally wear their boots on the inside. A knock-kneed man may be feeble and irresolute, but why should a knock-kneed old maid be attractive, gentle and modest?

No Vanity.
A man who wished to prove to himself that his three toes were guiltless of vanity, made a test, and found he had taken the three of them, a day or two before, to a summer resort. Meeting a friend, afterward, the latter person said: "I saw you at the beach the other day. First you were with two young girls, and later with an elderly-looking woman."

That gave the brother his opportunity for a test case. Going home, he put on a new pair of shoes. "Girls," he said, "a man who doesn't know any of you paid some of you a pretty compliment today."

They all looked interested. "He said that he saw me down at the beach the other day."

"Well," said one of them, expectantly. "And the first time he saw me, he said, 'I was with two young girls.'"

The three of them all looked down shyly, to conceal their maiden confusion.

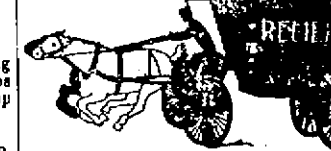

"And afterward," said the brother, "I met an elderly woman."

"Was, Jack?" cried the three in chorus. "He didn't notice that you spoke like a woman except at—"

"Prof," said one of them, abruptly.

"When I look into your eyes, Jennie, dear," he said, "it seems to me to remind me of a—"

"Why, George?" "Why, George?" "Why, George?" "Because, dear, your pupils are so large."

comes to the woman suffering from any of the painful disorders and derangements peculiar to her sex, if she accepts the help that is offered. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine so certain in its effects that it can be guaranteed. In every case, if it doesn't benefit or cure, your money is returned.

Beautiful women know how much they owe to good health. If you wish to be beautiful, keep the natural functions of the body in proper state and you'll be healthy.

A train of disorders follows the derangement of the womanly functions. For nervous prostration, excitability, fainting spells, dizziness, spasms, convulsions, or "fits," this remedy relieves and cures.

Take it when you suffer from sleeplessness, backache and bearing-down sensations, for the prompt relief it imparts.

The stepping-stone to Consumption—Is Catarrh. It don't pay to let it go, when the makers of Dr. Sage's Remedy will give $500 if they can't effect a permanent cure of your Catarrh.

Devices for Trapping Insects, Rats and Thieves.

The Boston Journal of Commerce has made the following extracts from patents which have been granted for trapping insects, rodents and thieves.

Contrivances for catching insects are more numerous than any others. One of them is a furnace for slaughtering potato bugs. To begin with, a deep and wide furrow is to be plowed all around an infested field; through this trench a small log is dragged to make the surface hard and smooth. The bugs in migrating to other grounds are unable to scale the trench, and the furnace, which is a cylinder of iron filled with fuel, is drawn along the furrow and destroys them. Other odd devices are contrivances intended to be inserted in the mouths of ant holes and to be fired, thus communicating stifling vapors to the subterranean chambers; also many kinds of traps for attracting and burning up the mouths of various worms in cotton fields. There is a toy pistol for insects, which sucks them in when the trigger is pulled.

An ingenious Westerner has invented a trap for catching the horn fly, which is such an enemy to cattle in some parts of the country. It consists most importantly of a great frame which the bees walk through, eager as they always are to scratch their heads. The flies will be scraped from their bodies by the branches. Finally the frame is closed up by means of doors and the captured insects are destroyed. Nearly everybody has heard of the gold tape-worm trap, which the patient swallows. Bedbug traps are of several varieties, all of them being intended to afford attractive hiding places for these blood suckers and to be burned or scalded out afterward.

Much ingenuity has been expended in rat traps. Some of them are so elaborate that no full-blown rodent would go near them. One requires Mr. Rat to come in through a door, which drops behind him and makes him a prisoner. Seeing a bright light above, he ascends a flight of little steps and trots across a small plank that is so nicely adjusted as to balance that his weight causes it to tip and throw him into a tank of acid. Another contrivance consists of a double chamber. One chamber has a glass door through which Mr. Rat sees two or three imitation rats having a nice time with a bit of cheese. Wishing to join them, he runs around the box, gets into the other chamber and is caught.

There are a number of devices which employ mirrors for the purpose of luring Mr. Rat in. He mounts on top of a bait and sees a reflection of a bit of cheese. As he approaches it he beholds another rodent—in reality his own reflection in a piece of looking-glass—coming for the cheese from the opposite direction. He makes a dash to get there first, and a pivoted board drops him into the tank, which is half full of water. Rats will swim for a long time, so one humanitarian has patented a water trap with little shelves around the edges and just above the surface. On the shelves are placed small lead weights with fish hooks hanging from them. The captured rat in trying to escape grasps one of the hooks, gets it fastened in his mouth, dislodges the piece of lead and is carried to the bottom by the latter.

Of greater interest are contrivances for catching thieves. One of them is designed to discourage bank sneaks. The sneak pushes his hand in through the teller's window, and unintentionally actuates a mechanism which causes a slide with spikes to close suddenly upon his paw and impale it. A trap of a somewhat similar character is a steel shutter for a house window, so disguised with coverings and fringe as to look like an ordinary curtain. If a burglar tries to enter at night, it shuts down upon him, the spikes hidden by the fringe helping to hold him fast.

It Wasn't the Same.
A city youngster who had never seen the country or breathed any air but that of the crowded tenement district, says the New York Tribune, took his first excursion into green fields with a "fresh air" party during the time of the full moon. The tiny yellow orb had a peculiar attraction for the little fellow, and night after night he would sit down on a certain stone behind the farmhouse where his party lodged and silently watch it as it rose over the trees.

The week of refreshing was soon over, however, and the boy went back to his tenement, leaving the country behind him.

A year passed, and again in the summer he "happened" that the little fellow came back to the same house for another excursion into the country. It was late in the afternoon when he arrived. Quietly he entered, and then he slipped quietly away and made straight for the stone in the back yard. But alas! there was no tiny yellow moon in the old place. The little boy looked all about, and finally discovered, low in the west, the slim silver crescent of the new moon. In a minute he came running into the house, crying bitterly, and exclaiming: "Oo, it's the same feller, it's the same feller who hid last year!"

A. O'D. Taylor has sold for the Misses Richmond, a building site on Ann street, containing about 1800 feet of land, to Mr. Charles W. North and his wife Helen E. North.

A. O'D. Taylor has rented for Mr. Eugene Hartmann, his two stores in Hartmann's block, Bellevue avenue, to Mr. Ogden Codman, Jr., of Boston, artistic architect.

TIVERTON.

Tiverton's lighting up, Tuesday night, surpassed anything in that line ever done there before and was about the finest illumination ever seen in this vicinity. The show was a great one from the water, from the lower road and from the upper road. Both permanent and summer residents had put forth unusual efforts to make a showing that would go down in history, and they succeeded. There was no fog this year to shut out the illumination at one house from the view of the people at the next house. If the people had had the arranging of the natural conditions they could not have produced so perfect a night for the show.

The best part of the show was from about mid-way between the bridges south, to the road that connects the upper with the river road. The illumination of the houses and grounds in this section was very elaborate and the effect was artistic and beautiful. There were other notable illuminations in other sections, but extra efforts appeared to have been put forth by all the people residing in the special section mentioned. Along the shore road above the railroad station there was a general lighting up but the illuminations in the southern section had the advantage of the rising grounds of the hill, and every single light was brought out distinctly. The Hammock was brightly and brilliantly lit up and O'Neill had a fine showing of lights at his summer home across the river between the bridges. Mr. C. S. Greene had St. Mary's band at his place on the upper road, and later the band drove over to Congressman O'Neill's residence and serenaded him.

The fireworks were mostly reserved for the passing of the New York boats, both of which responded to the compliment with their whistles. Nearly every house in Tiverton was gayly decorated and brilliantly illuminated and the two dances which wound up the evening's enjoyment were largely attended and heartily enjoyed.

Mr. N. B. Horton, of Rehoboth, celebrated the opening of his new summer residence on Evans avenue by a reception, to which a large number of friends and neighbors were invited.

Mr. Charles Almy, of Fall River is at the Almy homestead on Puncatuck Neck.

The barber's shop owned by Mr. Ross was entered by burglars Friday night, and about $30 worth of goods stolen.

Misses Louise and Bessie Remington, of Fall River, are guests of Mrs. Olla A. Gray.

Dr. A. Seward Webb and Perry Belmont gave a supper to a large number of friends, at the Stone Bridge House, Thursday evening, which was a very successful occasion. Among those present were Mrs. J. J. Astor, Baron Cozier, the Misses Gould and several other prominent people of Newport, who drove over in private coaches.

At a meeting of the town council Monday, Richard W. Albert was appointed administrator of the estate of Sarah Albert, with Cornelius S. Greene and Elmer R. Manchester as sureties to cover the bond of $3,000. George L. Church and Benjamin O. Sherman were appointed appraisers. Bills were allowed, amounting to $500.

Funeral services of Arthur, youngest child of Curtis S. Stafford, were held Sunday at the new chapel, Bliss' Four Corners, conducted by Rev. James C. Roberts. Many relatives and friends attended. The interment was at Pocasset Hill cemetery.

Mr. Charles Godfrey of Taunton is occupying the Newcombe cottage.

Sarah B. Anthony of Boston has sold to Daniel S. Church of Tiverton for $100 and other considerations, a 14 story cottage and other buildings together with 112 acres of land and known as the Almy Barker estate.

Ann Joyce of Tiverton has sold to George N. Durfee of Fall River a tract of land known as lot 23 in section G, Bellevue Heights.

Lucy V. Potter has sold to Newton Hooley of Fall River 2500 square feet of land on Evans avenue. An entertainment will be given Friday at the Congregational church consisting of recitations, music, etc.

Miss Nellie White of Lowell is the guest of Mrs. Joseph Durfee.

CITY WATER.
Notice Extraordinary.

The utmost economy in the use of water must be practiced on the supply will fall. The waste and use of water for the past week was 3,000,000 gallons each day, except Sunday, more than the average of cities of 20,000 inhabitants.

WM. S. SLOCUM, Treasurer.

Special Notice.

There are quite a number of water takers who, almost daily, violate the terms upon which water is furnished; we especially refer to those who use hose in violation of the printed rules and regulations, or who allow water to run to waste through carelessness in shutting off, or through leaky and defective plumbing, or who make use of water for a different purpose than that for which it is furnished.

Such persons are hereby notified that if they persist in paying their water rates; to such persons the Water Commissioners do not consider it self legally or in equity bound to continue a water supply, and it will be shut off forthwith.

Should the present drought continue, the company will be compelled to stop the use of all hose.
